OLD MAN FOOTBALL AWAKE WITH A START LAST WEEK-END!

He opened both eyes, blinked, and then began dancing and cavorting all over his grid-iron bed. His helmet was on backwards, and his satiny pantaloons of former glorious years were tattered and ragged, but he fastened them securely once again, put a pair of R.C.A.F. wings over each of three worn spots, and faced the football fandom of Canada with a big, wide grin that bespoke his downright gleeful attitude.

All fall he had been sleeping... sleeping... sleeping... The excitement of that east-west final of 1941 had been too much for the old boy, and when rugby weather came around again this year, Old Man Football was indisposed. The picture that he presented from Montreal to Calgary could only be described as a sorry one.

His classy western league had succumbed to the pressure of the times. His biggest eastern loop was fallen by the wayside; his colorful college association had long since ceased to function. Mighty teams of other years were being grieved, and so runs the story...

But let us turn from this bedtime fodder and get down to the reality of recent events!

It has been announced this past week-end that high authorities of the R.C.A.F. have extended the deadline to allow personnel to participate in a Canadian east-west football final, which will be held on December 5th in Toronto's Varsity Stadium. Of the four teams still in the running, three are air force units, and so the all-importance of such official military permission.

Only two O.R.F.U. teams now remain in the hunt, viz. Balm Beach and the Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes. To speed up proceedings, these two will engage in a sudden-death contest on Wednesday to decide an eastern semi-finalist. Up in Ottawa, a second R.C.A.F. squad is waiting to meet the winner next Saturday afternoon. The Western Champions have already been determined, and will journey eastward to engage in the grand finale one week from Saturday. Now let's take a glimpse at what has been going on in each of these three football districts.

The Winnipeg team wears the livery of the R.C.A.F. as well, and was good enough to eliminate the legendary Blue Bombers this year. Other than that, they are an unknown quantity to eastern fans but the above is quite recommendation enough! We have a high respect for any team representing the mid-west metropolises.

In the Ottawa City League a very parallel picture evolved on Saturday when Uplands Airport eliminated the Dominion finalists of last fall by shutting out the mighty Rough Riders by 9 to 0. The latter are not the power that once they were, but still had a goodly representation of former stars in their roster. The flyers, however, include no less than Tony Golab, Bobby Coulter, George Sprague, and Doug Turner, and that 65-yard touchdown plunge of Tony's suggests that he still is all he used to be! Whether you call him P.O. Tony Golab or just Tony, he is still the same Golab, and that is plenty!

This team has had less ballyhoo than the Toronto R.C.A.F. entry, but from our corner, we venture to predict that it will open many eyes when it rolls into Toronto next Saturday to vie for Eastern honours.

Around the Globe

Reds Continue Attack; Kill 50,000 Germans

Moscow announced that the Red Army had advanced 100 miles in its new counter offensive against the German army in that sector. The Russians caused more than 50,000 casualties and threaten to isolate and annihilate thousands more in their gigantic pincer movement.

Dakar and Senegal Join Allies

London reported that the strategic west coast port of Dakar as well as Senegal had informed the Allies that they would join them in their fight to knock the Axis out of Africa. This new move means that the sole African territory remaining in Axis hands is a small portion of Libya and Tunisia centring around Bizerte, and even this is in imminent danger of capture.

MacDonald Praises Colonial Policy

Mr. Malcolm MacDonald in a recent speech justified the trusteeship of the British Empire. He stated in example that in the colonies of Malaya, Africa, and the South Seas, British policy had always been "to teach them to stand a little more firmly on their own social and political feet."

Ross Pratt To Be Heard At McGill

Will Feature Chopin; Plays This Friday

A program of piano music will be presented by Ross Pratt, at a recital to be held in the Upper Gym of R.V.C., on Friday, Nov. 27, at 5.00 p.m.

Mr. Pratt, who is one of the most prominent of Canadian pianists, has chosen as the major work in his program for Friday a set of Twelve Studies by Frederic Chopin. These studies, seldom played, were last heard in Montreal when performed by Rudolf Serkin some time ago. To all those who were present at Mr. Pratt's recital last year in the same Auditorium, this concert should be of great interest.

Invitations to Outsiders

An invitation has been extended to the students of the Université de Montreal to attend this concert at student rates, which will be ten cents per person. This is the first time McGill has taken the lead in fostering recitals for students in Montreal.

The price for outsiders is fifty cents. Students, however, are urged to obtain their tickets as soon as possible since the available quantity is diminishing rapidly. Tickets can be bought from Bill Gentleman, the Union Tuck Shop, or from any of the following: M. Lobley, M. Sidorchuk, S. Chaplin, George Hutchings and M. M. Miller.

This concert by Ross Pratt, is the first this year in a series to be organized by the Women's Union. The plan is to run more concerts by some other outstanding recitalists. It is pointed out, however, by the committee, that future concerts can be arranged on the basis of the turnout for Friday's concert. It is therefore the duty, they stated, of every music lover on the campus to come and support this event.

French Society Meets Thursday

Comm. Quedrue, Of Free French To Be Speaker

La Societe Francaise will hold its second meeting of the season this Thursday, November 26 at 4.00 p.m. in the R.V.C. Common Room.

The speaker at this meeting will be Maurice Quedrue, the Commander of the Free French Forces headquarters in Montreal. Commander Quedrue has been with the Free French Forces since June, 1940. In the last war he commanded a Q. Boat, and saw action in some Atlantic battles. His life has been lived mainly on the sea, for before he was 21 years of age he had been around the world seven times in a sailing vessel.

The executive of "La Societe Francaise" wish to stress the privilege that is being tendered to members of the society in hearing such a personage as Commander Quedrue. He will relate some of his experiences at sea and will be pleased to answer any questions about his nautical life. The executive wishes to have a good attendance.

Arts and Science '43 To Get Pins, Pictures

Students of fourth year Arts and Science will be afforded a last chance to obtain class pins, rings, and pictures.

The class is requested to assemble on Thursday at 1.00 p.m. in front of the Arts Building when the class picture will be taken. Reproductions of the photograph will later be obtainable at the price of 50 cents each.

Rings and pins can be purchased this year only at an advanced price, because of the luxury taxes. Heavy gold pins will sell for $2.25, and rings at $3.90.

Lists will be posted on various notice boards so that those desiring either of these emblems may sign for them. The signing of any list will be regarded as a contract.

MP to Preside At Parliament

Debating Union Invites Claxton As Speaker

The Mock Parliament will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4.45 p.m. in the Union Ball Room. The Debating Union sponsors the Parliament as an annual event. The subject for discussion at this session is, "Resolved, That Education in Arts be discontinued for the duration of the war."

Brooke Claxton, a Member of Parliament at Ottawa, will hold the position of Speaker of the House in this session of the Mock Parliament. Colonel Bovey will attend and will present the Bovey Shield to Rodney Mahabir, the winner of the Freshman Contest. The latter will act as Prime Minister in the Mock Parliament while David Schwartzman, the runner-up, will be the Leader of the Opposition.

It is the feeling of the executive of the Debating Union that this discussion offers a fine opportunity for Artsmen to justify their course of study during wartime, and they expect the men in the Faculties of Engineering, Science, etc. to uphold the point of view of the Artsmen.

Engineers Will Hear Ackerman

Dinner-Meeting Is Held by Phi Epsilon Alpha

A dinner-meeting of the Phi Epsilon Alpha at which new members will be initiated is taking place today at 6.30 p.m. in the Faculty Club. The group is an honorary society in the Engineering faculty of McGill.

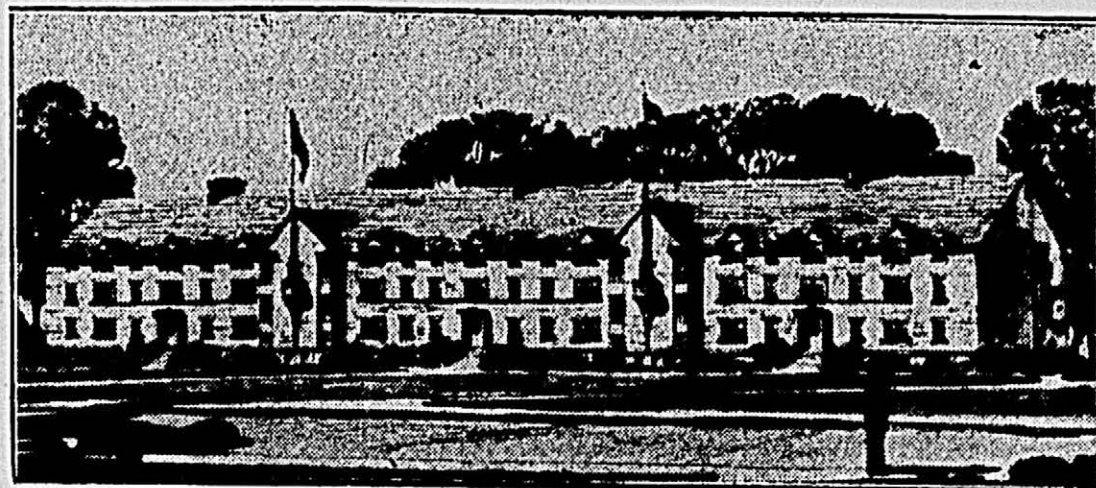

The guest speaker at this dinner-meeting will be Mr. Paul Ackerman, a consulting engineer of Montreal. His topic is to be "The Engineer and His Duty to Mankind."

Mr. Ackerman was recently guest speaker at a meeting of the Engineering Institute of Canada, Montreal Branch. His subject at that meeting was "Industrial Democracy and Its Survival." In his discussion he applied engineering methods to the solution of social and economic problems.

Paul Ackerman, who was born and educated in Switzerland, has been a contributor to technical literature, producing particularly information gained as a result of private research into social-economic problems.

The Phi Epsilon Alpha Society was founded at McGill University in 1934. Membership in the Society is through election by the members. All second, third, and fourth year students in any engineering department are eligible for membership. The main purpose of the Phi Epsilon Alpha Society is to point out to the younger engineers their position with respect to any other profession, and their duty towards the world in general. With this idea in mind, the Society holds regular dinner-meetings at which speakers address the group. Their topics are usually non-technical, and the speeches are followed by a general discussion by the members.

Avukah Members Hear M. Batshaw at Meeting

Avukah's meeting yesterday was highlighted by a talk delivered by Private Manuel Batshaw, Canadian Active Army, and McGill graduate social worker.

Mr. Batshaw spoke on the topic "The Jew and the War" and pointed out the gigantic issues at stake. He emphasized the contribution of Palestine in the conflict, despite the fact that a Jewish Army was not sanctioned.

After the evening was over many remained to participate in singing and dancing. It was decided that a musicale is to be held on Sunday, November 29, at which "unusual and unprecedented novelties" will be featured.

Economy Club To Hear Papers

Subject to Be 'Monetary and Fiscal Policy'

"Monetary and Fiscal Policy" is to be the subject of discussion at the meeting of the Political Economy Club, to be held this Thursday evening at 8.00 p.m. The meeting will take place in the Grill Room of the Union. The address is to be delivered by Don Cambridge and George McCollm.

It has also been announced that a resolution concerning the admittance of women students to the club will be presented before the members for discussion. Since its formation, stated a member of the executive, only men students have been permitted to join the Political Economy Club. On several occasions in the past, resolutions have been put forward to permit women students to join, but they have always been defeated. The discussion on this motion is in the main a remainder from a similar discussion that took place last year.

The election of the club's treasurer is also scheduled to take place at this meeting. Because of the importance of this post, the executive asks all club members to be present. Nominations will be made from the floor.

FEDERATION OF CATHOLIC CHARITIES

November 18th, 1942.

Dear Mr. Connolly:

I am writing to wish you and your workers in the Amalgamated Charities Campaign at McGill University next week, every success.

In these days when it is so easy for the able bodied to find employment, the very young, the crippled, the sick, and the aged are apt to be forgotten, and it is an encouragement to those of us who are interested in charitable social work, to see the young students thinking of the old who are no longer able to earn, and the active young men of your University thinking of the bed-ridden and the crippled.

Let me assure you that there is a genuine need for your help in many directions. All you are able to give will be spent in helping those who, through no fault of their own, cannot help themselves.

May I, on behalf of the Federation of Catholic Charities, thank you and send you our best wishes for a successful campaign.

Yours sincerely,

Signed: J. C. McLaughlin,

Chairman - 1943 Campaign
Federation of Catholic Charities.

Architect Plans New Building

Contributions Received From Alumni, Friends

The architect's sketch above shows the centre section of the proposed new residence to provide accommodations for men students at Mount Allison University. The above section of the new residence will accommodate 117 men, and will be divided into three units with communications from one unit to another through the dining room only. Each unit will have a separate office, reception room, and common room. The building will be erected of sandstone from the Mount Allison quarries, and will be entirely of fireproof construction.

The proposed new residence as designed by C. A. Fowler of Halifax will eventually consist of three buildings and will be located on the extended site of the old residence, which was destroyed by fire last year. The centre block, pictured above, will be about opposite the

Red Wings Call For Nominees

Seven Members To Be Chosen At Elections

Nominations for the Red Wing Society of the Women's Union are due this week, and must be handed in to Ina Charleson, Secretary of the Society, by noon this Friday.

Seven posts in the Red Wings must be filled by women students at the next election. Two representatives from third year are to be chosen. One of these girls must be a resident student in R.V.C., and the other must be non-resident.

Two representatives are to be elected from first year and two from second year, and of these again, one student in each year must be a resident and one a non-resident.

First year of M.S.P.E. is also to be represented by one person, resident or non-resident.

The name and year of the candidate must be written on a sheet of paper, and the names of at least ten women students who are undergraduates must be appended.

The elections for these posts will be held on December 9, when the students will vote for representatives to the Students' Executive Council and to the Scarlet Key Society.

Le Jour Editor Speaks Thursday

Outremont By-Election Will Be Discussed

Jean Charles Harvey, Editor of "Le Jour," will address the McGill student body this Thursday, Nov. 26, at 5.00 p.m., in the Grill Room of the McGill Union. The topic of his speech will be a very timely one, "The Significance of the Outremont By-Election."

In this contest for a seat in the Lower House, Major General LaFleche, D.S.O., and Minister of National War Services, will be opposed by Jean Drapeau, noted advocate of an anti-conscription policy, who claims to represent the youth of Quebec. Mr. Harvey is expected to point out to his listeners the importance of a government victory in this contest. General LaFleche has long been a firm believer in an all-out drive for victory, while his opponent, Mr. Drapeau's policy is one that would prevent any Canadian soldiers leaving their country, no matter the urgency.

The dance committee has stressed the fact that the dance is not for members of the Faculty of Dentistry alone, but is an open event, with all students at McGill invited to attend.

Cosmos Meet At Luncheon

Will Hear Talk On University Newspapers

On Wednesday, November 25th, at 1.00 p.m., the members of the Cosmopolitan Club will hold an informal gathering in the McGill Union. The meeting will get under way with a luncheon, which will be eaten in the Union Grill Room. Medical Education

South of the border an interesting article on medical education has recently appeared. This article discusses the rising cost to the student of his medical education and wonders what can be done about it.

All the figures quoted are those gathered in the United States but they are equally applicable in Canada. Tuition costs to the student range from $68 to $610; cost of books, instruments, etc., range from $67 to $189; room, board, laundry, etc., from $344 to $748; miscellaneous including recreation, travelling expenses, etc., from $102 to $521. All of which adds up to a yearly average of $700 to $1,717 a year. And that means an average cost of $5,000 while in medical school.

If the cost of pre-medical training and post-graduate internship is considered another $5,000 is added to the total. And another consideration is the money that the medical student might have earned working instead of studying. All of which means that to the average medical student having average expenses, the total cost of his medical training to his family can be figured as about $20,000. And that is a considerable sum.

What this means to society is that only the children of the higher income brackets can consider entering medicine, with a decrease of enrollment from the sons of the middle and lower income brackets. And, as Dean Rappleye of the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons says, it is from these latter that many of our great physicians have come.

Another effect that the high cost of medical education has had on society is in the distribution of medical care. For after having laid out so much to get his education, the medical man naturally turns to those areas where he can get higher fees. Which means in fact that the medical man gravitates to the cities. Thus we have today the picture of great advances in medical knowledge in urban areas, together with rural areas with a large part of our population crying for medical care.

With the war the need for doctors has increased. The medical course is accelerated. For students this has meant an increase in their costs. Here in Canada the Government has stepped in and is helping students. In the States Government aid is also being provided on a limited scale. But this will not solve the problem.

Along with the increase in the cost of medical education has gone an increase in the number of scholarships available to medical students. But these are not enough to provide a solution to the problem.

Another suggested solution has been the shortening of the time needed to train doctors by providing a well integrated pre-medical and medical course which will reduce the superfluous subjects, in both. But this is difficult in execution even if it were agreed that this is the solution, which it is not. For the present system has been evolved over many ears and presumably therefore is the best of the methods used.

What then is the solution? It might be government subsidization of students and of medical schools. To this might be raised the cry of freedom from meddlesome government rule. But government assistance doesn't mean that. What it will mean is a realization on the part of the public that it is they who benefit from the education given medical students and therefore they must pay for these benefits. Such a plan might lead to a better geographic distribution of medical care and also open up the medical field to those of moderate means.

All of this is a thought and may well be part of the shape of things to come after the war.

Music Notes

DISTAFF SIDE

Events scheduled for the current week tend to prove that in musical doings, and specifically in the smaller forms—the chamber music, and the intimate types of performance—the women are having their day. This week will bring two concerts of that sort, in which they largely figure. Considerable interest will centre, for example, on the next Sarah Fischer concert at the Art Association this Wednesday, where Violet Archer, Claire Gagnier, and Huguette Seguin are to be heard. And later in the week, McGill String Quartet patrons will find women in the second violin and 'cello places, filling the gaps left by Stephen Kondaks, with the organization since '40, and Jean Belland, one of the original members.

SARAH FISCHER CONCERT

Miss Archer is a brilliant and uncompromising composer, and one of the Conservatorium's star alumnae, who will offer some of her own piano music at the Art Gallery on Wednesday. There have been, I think, less performances locally of her work in that form than of her orchestral music, and that in other chamber forms. She will introduce her three Canadian Sketches, the variations on "Isabeau se Promene," and the Sonatina. Claire Gagnier, coloratura soprano, will sing the "Histoire des Tules Temps" of Haydn, a Berceuse, and the "Allegretto" of Mozart, "Mi Chiamano Mimi" from Boheme, and the Polonaise from Mignon. Huguette Seguin is a thirteen-year-old pianist who will play a Haydn sonata, and works by J. S. and C. P. E. Bach, and Scarlatti. Tickets are fifty-seven cents each, and can be had at Willis'.

McGILL STRING QUARTET

Irrespective of what effect the change in personnel will have on the McGills' sound, it gave a new justification and verisimilitude to the name of the group. Alexander Broit and Mildred Goodman are both distinguished graduates of the Conservatorium, and Lotte Goetzl, who had formerly studied in Switzerland, was, for a time, a student. Edwin Sherrard is an Engineering School graduate of the University. On Friday at the Windsor, Arthur Benjamin will be the quartet's first soloist of the present season, in a piano quintet by Dvorak.

Book Shelf

TURNING LEAVES, by Ellen Proctor. Dodd, Mead and Company, New York, 1942. $10.00. Prize novel. (384 pages).

For those readers of fiction who are satisfied with a superficial acquaintanceship with their heroes and heroines, Ellen Proctor's $10.00 prize-winning novel, "Turning Leaves" will meet with a great deal of enthusiasm and acclaim. For those, however, who like to delve deeper into man's thoughts and emotions, this book will be found wanting. For though, "Turning Leaves" shows vividly the inter-relationship of people, and their influence on one another, yet at no times does it really hit at the core of human feelings and thought. The nearest the novelist comes to achieving this is with James Livingstone IV, scion of a prominent Minnesota family. But alas, James enters the picture all too infrequently.

Briefly, "Turning Leaves" deals with the everyday trials and tribulations of the Livingstones, rich in family tradition and background. Although the setting and theme of the story are definitely of a modern nature, one is constantly aware of the past and its voices, ringing through the old Livingstone household. Four generations of Livingstones lie behind the present family introduced in "Turning Leaves" and yet they too come forth to claim their part in the novel. Every generation had its Julia and Gabrielle, and each time the girls fell in love with the same man. This Gabrielle and Julia are no different. Each loves Jeffrey Lane. But Julia, hard and calculating, loves money and position more, and so Jeffrey goes to Gabrielle, quiet, sensitive and artistic.

Julia and Gabrielle, though dominating the scenes, do not comprise the entire Livingstone family. There are five others, each full of his own individuality and ambitions. Then there is James, IV, and Mary, Father and Mother of the large, motley brood. Both of these latter characters are vital and real, as is Kit Roberts, the faithful family physician, and secret admirer of Gabrielle. Each character fits into his respective role with a certain amount of grace and sobriety, and the story unfolds with a certain deftness of touch. By the end of the 62nd chapter, one feels as though he has lived through a great deal, along with the Livingstones.

But somehow through all of "Turning Leaves," one is aware of very basic feelings and emotions having been overlooked. The story, though thoroughly enjoyable as light reading, lacks the deeper intricacies of man's influence on man. No scene is profoundly moving, no scene deeply engrossing. Yet once you have begun "Turning Leaves" you will probably not put it down until it has been completed.

Political Comment

Individual opinions expressed in this column are those of the contributors of the articles and not necessarily those of the Students Society or of the Managing Board of the McGill Daily.

ABOUT IMPERIALISM

A letter appeared in yesterday's "Daily" criticizing Willkie's recent statement about Churchill: "The world is profoundly shocked by Mr. Churchill's statement that he was not created to be the king's first minister in order to witness the dissolution of the British Empire." This is definitely a debatable subject, and I disagree with the writer's suggestion that Willkie be repressed.

I believe Willkie's statement was born out of a profound respect for the British people. Before the war Americans used to think the British were a cold, calculating sort of people, a nation run by industrialists and imperialists who sought to wring a maximum of labour for a minimum of pay from the people they dominated. They changed this opinion when they witnessed the gallant defence the British put up against the Nazis. The industrialists produced for victory, and labour set aside its quarrels and fought side by side with them. They were no longer the selfish people who wouldn't pay their war debt. New hope of a world with "equal distribution of territory and raw materials" arose. Then at this of all times Churchill reminded us that this can never be, there will always be classes that will dominate other classes, races that will dominate other races. Even in this war, the war of the people for a better way of life, there is the voice of the imperialist.

It is not surprising that protest should come from an American. America fought for its independence from such an imperialism. It also fought a war to better the condition of the negroes in the South. American ideology has always opposed exploitation of one people by another. The American people are fighting this war in the same spirit, and I think the British people are too.

In Memoriam

Joe College is dead. The first German shot which was fired in the present war was as fatal to him as if it had ripped through his very heart. To pay proper tribute to such as he is a difficult task indeed.

You may recall him as the young man with the perennial smile, his familiar battered grey fedora tipped at a cocky angle upon his head, wrapped in an enormous raccoon coat, sporting a grotesque looking pipe, slouching about in an habitually unpressed pair of checked trousers with a bulge in the back pocket containing his flask, and riding around in a bright red shiny roadster.

Joe was the mainstay of every inter-collegiate team, his favourite sport being rugby. It was an unequalled thrill to watch him battering and slashing his way down the field for a 50 yard run to a touchdown. The excited cheering of the frantic spectators, the cold feel of the pigskin firm beneath his arm, the chill expectancy before attempting a new play were as the very breath of life to him.

He was the president of every campus organization and dominated campus politics with the assistance of his frat, those grand old boys of Theta Phi Beta.

Singularly handsome and well-built Joe captivated the hearts of every wistful coed. They would sigh gently and whisper softly to one another as he rode by in his bright red shiny roadster.

Yes, Joe College was an all-around athlete, an able executor, good-looking with a fine manly grace and travelled in the selectest circles. His spare time he used to devote to study but he had very little spare time. He was never an outstanding scholar but after all you can't do everything and in any event Dad's more than ample business was waiting for him upon graduation. Joe's motto was, "It's not what you know but whom you know that is important." Culture rather than specific technical knowledge was his aim in attending the university.

The circumstances surrounding his demise are tragic beyond description. The plain fact was that, alas, Joe had nothing left to live for. His brave young world was completely washed away by a deluge of international complications.

The war had ruled out inter-collegiate sports. This in itself nearly broke his heart. His beloved rugby with its intense excitement and cheering crowds was gone . . . for the duration. How he weathered this stunning blow I shall never understand. Doggedly he fought like the stout fellow that he was to retain his recreation but all in vain.

Club activities were severely restricted, the number of dances held were cut down, clothes fashions were revoltingly stabilized, the price of tobacco rose, the luxury tax on liquor and night-clubs became insupportable, checks from Dad were reduced in number and amount, tightening up of examinations was catastrophic, and his bright red shiny roadster fell victim to gas rationing and the rubber shortage and now languished idly in his garage. His beautiful existence was slowly crumbling into ugly ruins about his confused head.

Joe successor is his complete antithesis in every respect. He is uniform-clad, serious-minded, studious, his mind busy with thoughts of war and his heart busy with thoughts of peace, sensitive of his obligations, sensibly austere in his tastes, with a dash of recklessness and carelessness in his demeanour to show that he still has his sense of humour.

Though Joseph is no longer with us his memory will linger always, haunting the great grim corridors of the university with his echoing laughter. With him dies an era, a fabulous era of fashionable plenty and pleasurable idleness.

So let the trumpets blare forth loud and long and let the faint amen be uttered over the sacred tomb for there will never be another like Joe College . . . or so at least we solemnly hope and pray.

Theatre Notes

THE MAJOR AND THE MINOR AT "LOEWS"

"The Major and the Minor" is a delightful piece of entertainment in the style of a sophisticated comedy. The plot is by no means sensational but nevertheless enjoyable. Ginger Rogers, fed up with New York, decides to return to her home town but at the station she discovers that the fare has gone up since she's come to New York and the money she has so carefully kept for a return fare is no longer adequate. Discovering that children under twelve travel half-fare, she dresses up as a charming pig-tailed youngster and gets her ticket. On the train, however, the conductors suspect and she is forced to take refuge in the cabin of a handsome young major returning to the military academy where he is an instructor. The unsuspecting major, played by Ray Milland, adopts her for the journey and becomes her Uncle Phillip taking her with him when the train is held up. The last half of the movie dealing with Ginger's adventures as the twelve-year old belle of Military Academy of three hundred fifteen-year old wolves, all of whom fall for her and all of whom have a "theory on the fall of France," and finally with the clearing up of complications resulting from Ginger's "double-vie" and her falling in love with Milland, is even more entertaining.

Ginger gives an exceptionally fine performance. Her portrayal of a twelve-year-old is so convincing that at times you have to force yourself to remember that she is not twelve. Her other impersonations are equally realistic, and she is definitely the star of the show. Ray Milland is pleasant to look at, and he plays an adequate second fiddle to Ginger's first. The supporting cast, in particular those teen-year olds in the Military Academy with their grown-up sense of importance, their romantic inclinations and changing-voices, is very well chosen.

Few shows are able to boast as good a set of shorts. Short-story lovers will like the filming of William Saroyan's tale, "The Best Job" . . . a human story of people. News, a "cute" cartoon and a coloured short on strange occupations complete an excellent two-and-a-half hours entertainment.

"My Sister Eileen" is the screen adaptation of the Broadway play of the same name. Judged on its merits as a film alone, it is highly entertaining fare. Critics have disparaged it on the grounds of comparison with the stage version, but since the majority of movie audiences will see it only as a film, this seems hardly fair to the Hollywood producer.

Briefly the plot deals with the adventures of two career girls who take a studio in Greenwich Village. Ruth, the elder played by Roselind Russell, has ambitions in the literary line while Eileen (Janet Blair), is stagestruck. Many and wild are their experiences (in a studio where the blasting directly underground is the least of their daily disturbances) before the picture reaches the inevitable happy ending.

Roselind Russell turns in her usual excellent performance in a role which gives her plenty of opportunity to make the most of her remarkable gift for light comedy. Newcomer Janet Blair exudes comph in her part as something of a "wolfess," but her acting ability remains to be proved in some future opus.

Allyn Joslyn in a minor role does one of his best acting jobs in some time. Brian Aherne has a non-committal part which does not give him much of a chance to display the histrionic talent which he undoubtedly possesses. George Tobias as the artist landlord is rather good, which means that his fans will find him better than ever and those who have never admired him will find him somewhat more entertaining than usual.

The program is the better for a short called "Song of Victory" which satirizes the world situation at times of national life. It is good.

Letter Forum

Still More Defense

Editor McGill Daily.
Mr. H. C. F. Shatan,
and the "LARGE CROWD."

Dear Sir,—
Thank you, Mr. Shatan, thank you for your most enlightening letter of the other day. Surprising as it seems it has been published, even though such a piece of egotistical nonsense was not even fit for the waste basket.

You do not like the Daily this year, Mr. Shatan. We are so sorry. We would like to please you so very much.

Mulligan has only "a fairly decent sense of humour," Mr. Shatan. How sad!

You represent "a large group of McGill Students," Mr. Shatan. Well, how nice! We love to have the personal opinion of large groups . . . when they send a bona-fide delegate.

But nevertheless your letter has been a great joke to everyone, (for it was a joke, was it not?) And we do appreciate your effort. (It must have taken a great deal of courage to write it.) Now, Mr. Shatan, since you are a very courageous man, have the patience to listen to a few constructive suggestions of our own.

If you do not like the Daily, why not come and publish it yourself? Not once, not twice, but five times a week, work or no work, military training or no military training.

Come, Mr. Shatan, come and publish the Daily, as WE DO, after having drilled all evening and having worked all day. You will see how easy it is to please everybody and fill four large pages.

Do you know who puts out the Daily, Mr. Shatan? A mere little group of students who come again and again every night of the week, who sweat and toil so that every morning people like you will get their paper. They work well into the night, and most of the time the lights in the Union's basement are still burning whilst YOU Mr. Shatan have been in bed for a long time. (Of course you can afford to go to bed before 2.30 in the morning, you only read the paper.)

They work, that gallant band of writers, not to please you, not to please themselves, but because they have a sense of duty. They have agreed to put out a hundred issues of the Daily and they will put out a hundred.

Red Pucksters Tangle With Army This Friday

Bell's Boys Tied With Fliers for Second Place

McGill's ice commandos take on the Montreal district Army hockey team in their third public outing this Friday night at the Forum. The Red Pucksters will be out for their second win of the season in order to retain a firmer hold on second place.

Dr. Bobby Bell's mighty warriors lost a close decision last Friday night in a game which had the spectators on their feet continually. Once again the McGill rear-guard played outstanding hockey as they turned aside the Tar's powerful assaults on Ritchie. The collegians went into the lead in the first period when Blair and Farmer made the little red light behind the sailor's net twinkle twice. Although both teams were playing cautiously at this stage it appeared that the brilliant playing of Ritchie was just what was needed to stop the powerful Navy team.

STRONG DEFENSE. This the way play continued all during the second and third periods after Navy tied the score, the sailors continuing on the attack while the tight McGill defense held off the sharpshooters. This game only succeeded in bringing out a fact that was very apparent to most hockey fans, the big Red team boasted of one of the strongest defenses in hockey, whether professional or amateur in the Montreal district but that their forwards seemed to be opportunists waiting for a break and not forwards whose job it is to attack the opposing team's nets for the only way to win a hockey game is to put the puck in the net more often than your opponents.

This Friday the collegians will possibly be able to test their power plays as they take on the last place Army team who had one of the strongest teams in the league at the pre-season round-up but have greatly disappointed all their followers by getting swamped first by the Navy and then by the Air Force in their last two games.

UNABLE TO SCORE. The only McGill forward line that has shown any life so far is the line of Costigan, Blair and Farmer who have scored the majority of McGill's points in the teams last two games. The other lines are playing great defensive hockey but seem unable to take the offensive for any length of time. As has been mentioned above Ross Ritchie has played two strong games in the McGill nets while MacFarlane and Ward have played outstanding games on the defence. In the second game this Friday the first place sailors take on the hard hitting Flyers from the Lachine depot in a battle that promises to be one of the hardest fought games of the season.

Sports Talk

by Dave

This past week one of the meanest tricks and one of the dirtiest deals ever handed to a player or a sports coach was pulled by the Brooklyn Baseball club when they announced through their Montreal mouthpiece, Hector Racine, that Clyde Sukeforth had been passed up and his post as manager of the Montreal Royals had been offered to Fat Freddy Fitzsimmons. The reason given by the higher-ups of the Dodger organization was that Sukehey had failed to bring the Penant to Montreal.

Sukeforth came to Montreal after it had gone through a couple of seasons under the management of a couple of baseball clowns, namely Grimes and the "Rabbit." In his first year Sukeforth just barely missed making the playoffs with a team that was riddled by call-ups from big league teams, losing his great outfield in the midst of the battle for playoff positions.

The following year Sukeforth showed what he could do with a good club under his leadership when his team captured the Governor's cup and advanced into the Little World Series only to be beaten out in the final game. This year Sukeforth kept his team high up in the standings and ended the season in second place only to be beaten in the semi-finals by a red-hot Syracuse team. He was able to do this with a pitching staff that could not show one steady winner, a sloppy infield (outside of Stan Rojek) and a fair outfield.

The front office said too that Sukeforth lacked fight but apparently Racine did not see Sukeforth at the Jersey City game when Jack Graham was beated. This action has a dirty smell and it surprises me that only one Montreal scribe has come to Sukehey's defense, most of them commenting merely upon the fact that there will be a bunch of angels playing for the satisfied Dodgers this year.

Dick Quinn is really looking after his investment! The old boxing and wrestling promoter is travelling the sticks of western Texas with his great prodigy, Yvon Robert. This is possibly to make sure that now Robert is really recognised champion, he will not lose the hard won title to some village strong man. By the way, one of the greatest sports attractions is coming to the Forum on Dec. 8 when the Ice-capers of 1943 hit the ice. This is one of the best examples of a musical ice extravaganza with its fill of fast skating boys and girls.

Jean Richer Defeats Ledain 6-0, 6-0 as Bishop Defaults to Hays

Jean Richer, seeded star, defeated Gerald Ledain 6-0, 6-0, while Tom Bishop defaulted to Jack Hays in the two matches in the quarter-finals that were played at the Montreal Indoor Tennis Club yesterday afternoon. This was the only game that was played and Le Dain did not offer Richer much opposition and he easily brushed aside his opponent playing as always faultless tennis.

This match is a continuation of the men's tennis tournament that was started early last month and had to be postponed because many of the boys went out west. The tennis club decided to finish the play-down as it had already reached the quarter-finals and through the generosity of the Montreal Indoor Tennis Club, McGill was given the use of their courts.

This will probably present some difficulties to the remaining contestants, some of whom have never played on hard-wood courts before, because the ball will bounce around with greater force. It is hoped, however, that this will not have much effect upon the play and that the matches will be able to be played and completed before the end of next week.

Today at 1.15 p.m. C. M. Gobeilvs, Walter Palmer and Archer vs. Bob Watt will be the last two matches in the quarter-finals. In the latter match, the first seeded Bob Watt is favoured to beat Archer but the second match promises to be a closely contested affair with both players coming into the tennis limelight at McGill for the first time.

Assault-at-Arms To Be Held At Armoury

On Dec. 16, and 17, this year's inter-company novice assault-at-arms will take place; and contestants will compete in boxing, wrestling, fencing, and possibly weightlifting.

Formerly only M.R.T.B. representatives took part in these contests, but this year the three separate units of McGill will compete.

In these sports men will face opponents only of their own weight and experience. Boxing and wrestling competitors will be classed according to the following weights: 118 lbs., 125 lbs., 135 lbs., 145 lbs., 155 lbs., 165 lbs., 175 lbs., and heavyweights. Fencers will contest with foil, epee, and sabre.

Winners of each event will be presented with a Third Grade Award, while runners-up will receive a Numeral.

Instruction in these sports is given on certain days throughout the week, and all men interested are invited to turn out. Boxing classes are held on Tuesdays and Thursdays, wrestling on Tuesdays and Fridays, fencing on Mondays and Fridays, and weight lifting daily from 5.15 to 6.15 p.m.

Boxers Are Put Through Paces

Competition Is Planned With Outside Clubs

Boxing classes, under the able direction of Coach Tommy Parr, are now being held every Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 5.15 to 6.15 p.m.

Tommy Parr has a wide reputation as both a boxer and a coach. During the last war he gained the middleweight championship of the Cavalry Corps of the B.E.F. and in subsequent years won several other army boxing titles. During his entire career he was victorious in two hundred of his two hundred and four fistful engagements.

Experience is not necessary and Coach Parr gives those with no previous experience individual attention. The instruction at present is directed toward general conditioning by calisthenics and light sparring.

This year, more attention is being given to outside competition for those who are qualified. Several matches are contemplated with local intercollegiate competition and the armed forces.

If any additional information is desired, it can be had from Em Orlick at the Gym or Bud Elliot, PL. 1674.

McGill Service Cagers To Meet Navy Sextet

First M.B.L. Fixture Set for Friday December 4

The McGill hoopsters scored an outstanding victory last Friday when they beat the Air Force in their first game in the Montreal Services Basketball League. Coach Van Wagner's charges unleashed a strong offensive that had the Airmen hemmed in their half for the greater part of the play. Led by Mahon, Evans and Eastwood this team are out to repeat their first win when they meet the Navy cagers this Friday night in the Arthur Currie Gymnasium.

The Redmen showed good passing and shooting throughout the game and appear to be a strong contender for the Service league basketball crown. This team seemed to overcome the inability of last year's Senior basketball squad to put the ball in the hoop.

BALL HANDLING GOOD.

Although none of the hoopsters have ever played for a college team they showed no stage fright and such players as Mahon, Evans, Rosentveig and Eastwood showed great ball handling ability. Twice Mahon dribbled the length of the floor to score by himself while Rosentveig scored eight points by himself. The team, however, showed a tendency to lapse into a state of semi-coma at times and because of this reason the play during part of the game had a tendency to become very ragged.

The McGill senior squad will make their initial appearance on Friday, Dec. 4 when the Montreal Senior Basketball league opens its 1942-1943 season. Coach Van Wagner's squad show great promise of coping the Montreal district title boasting a team that includes Ronnie Wilson, high scoring star of last year's eastern Canadian champions, plus a majority of last year's team.

STRONG DEFENCE
In recent practices Delbel and Robinson have shown standout ability on the defence as they snared rebounds off the small backboard and started off plays in a very smart fashion. The forwards led by Dave Holdredge and Mumford have also showed to better advantage than last year when their inability to put the ball in the basket cost them many a game. This year promises to be McGill's greatest season on the basketball front and the team should get good support from all cage enthusiasts at McGill.

Of Parliament will each be allotted five minutes during which they may uphold their view of the discussion. After the leaders have an opportunity for rebuttal a vote of the majority of the House will decide the matter.

curriculum is heavy. We must attend military training. So many factors to influence the output of the Daily. We have not the time, Mr. Shatan, to make an artistic masterpiece of our newspaper.

We know Mulligan is the tops. But Mulligan cannot write the whole Daily every night. By the way, you have no comment on the Sports page. Of course if you really are the artistic and extra-material soul you think you are, sports hold no interest for you. If I say that I believe our Sports page to be one of the best in any college newspaper, you will accuse me of conceit. I will therefore let you say it, so that you may be right on at least one point. And admit you must, if you are a fair critic.

Whenever you have some of your precious time to spare, Mr. Shatan, come and see us. We would enjoy having your help in making a layout, writing a few heads, or copy reading the stories of our reporters. Obviously you have no idea of the tremendous work required in putting out the Daily. We will initiate you... with pleasure.

It will also give you a chance of getting your name into print, which seems the only plausible reason of your letter.

Affectionately yours,
ARMEL ROBITAILLE,
Associate Editor.

On the War.

Editor, McGill Daily:

Dear Sir—In the past two weeks peoples of all nations, united in the fight against fascism, have been heartened by news from the war fronts. The forces of the United Nations have begun to carry on offensive action. With the invasion of Africa we have started to carry the fight to the enemy!

Now, more than ever before, it is necessary to build a maximum war effort, so that this beginning offensive shall continue with ever increasing momentum and strength, on to the invasion of Europe, on to victory against fascism.

McGill students have been carrying on various activities in support of the war effort: war service campaigns, part time work in war industries. Both of these are important and should be continued and increased.

But these are intra-curricular activities. There still remain unsolved problems more directly concerned with students: problems of students, as such, in a war-time world; adaptation of curricular activities to a war-time program. Until these questions are settled the University cannot be placed on a total war basis.

In order to successfully solve these problems it is necessary to have full co-operation of all groups concerned: students, staff and university authorities. There could be set up a body containing representatives from each of these groups, to discuss war problems applied to the University, and to act upon all decisions reached regarding such problems. We have already at McGill a body which could effect such co-operation: the War Council. The constitution of the War Council contains provision not only for representation from all student groups, but also for representation from the staff. So far this provision has not been carried out. We believe it is the duty of the War Council to act upon this provision as soon as possible, to bring about active co-operation between students and staff on the question most important to all of us: a total war program for the University.

Yours truly,
ALETA BURNS,
HAROLD GOLDBERG,
STEPHANIE ZUPERKO,
RUTH LATT,
JUDITH COHEN.

On Higgins Speech

The Editor-in-Chief, McGill Daily,
Montreal, Que.

Dear Sir:

Professor Higgins' talk on "Post-War Reconstruction," was most interesting and educational. Being an economics student, my ears are naturally open to any suggestions, facts and any other economic phenomena that may be presented and I can sincerely assure you, that Professor Higgins certainly clarified my economic knowledge.

These discussions on "Post-War Reconstruction" are most important, for they are preparing a way towards a better world. They also teach us ways to face the post-war with confidence and determination. The most important benefit which these discussions present, I believe, is that they show that as we are helping in the winning of the war, we are also given an opportunity to give suggestions as to how the post-war world can be improved, both economically, socially and politically.

home, it was being imported from another country. The plain result is that these farmers are faced with an increased price on machinery.

Well, I think I've said enough, and hope that this letter will be published, and kindly oblige.

Yours truly,
Maurice Courcy.

More Criticism.

To the Editor of the Daily:

Sir: Owing to your lack of publicity, and when there was publicity, your erroneous treatment of the material which was given to you by the Women's Union representatives, it was found impossible to hold the meeting at which Mary Margaret Miller and Jean C. Mitchell were scheduled to speak, and to present their reports on the International Student Assembly and the Student's Institute on International Affairs respectively. They had gone to a great deal of trouble in the preparation of their reports on subjects important to the whole student body. An audience of four people appeared as a result of the scintillating publicity of the Daily, which consisted of two articles in which the facts were completely misrepresented, and various errors in information as to time and place. Inexcusable neglect of important publicity is a heinous offence on the part of any newspaper that calls itself a newspaper.

There is a great deal of growing criticism of the Daily on the campus at the present time, and we feel justified in registering a strong complaint not only for our own part in this particular instance, but also for the others who feel that the Daily is not fulfilling its obligations to the students.

PENELOPE CHIPMAN,
Publicity Agent,
Current Events Section,

Program Committee.

Bet you won't publish this!

Ed. Note: This is the second time that we have been challenged to publish a letter criticizing the Daily. In reply to this latter challenge we say "Bet we will." We may further note en passant that it may help if clubs and societies co-operated a little more in the publishing of publicity for them.

Arts Students.

Editor, McGill Daily:

Sir—I wish to add my sincere congratulations to those which have already been heaped upon McGill morale, as exemplified by the attendance of a scant hundred at the International Student Rally on Thursday night. And particularly I would like to congratulate the Arts faculty, which is supposed to be primarily interested and active in the ethical and moral aspects of the war.

The class distinctions, social snobism, race prejudice, and narrow reactionary spirit which are the outstanding features of the majority of Arts students at McGill cause me to fear that this faculty is much worse than useless in the war effort. For they are the ones who are supposed to be preparing the "New Life" in a "War-free World"; while under present circumstances they are preparing nothing but a slightly worse version of the Old Life, and another war in twenty years or less. And if that is what will happen, this war is useless, and the Arts faculty, as I have said, worse than useless.

"It is my opinion that, if the Nazis get to Canada, Montreal students will not have to be slaughtered as the Czechs were slaughtered. A university like McGill, with its Junker student spirit, would not have much difficulty in falling in with the Nazi line of thought."

IRVING MASSEY,
B.A. 3.

The Housing Problem.

The Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sir,

I would like to bring to your attention the situation which exists in regard to the rooms where many students are boarding. In several cases, the effective room rent has been sharply increased, and this has often caused the students concerned to vacate their rooms and seek accommodation elsewhere.

I would like to know what is the legal aspect of this rent increase, and if the University authorities can do anything to control this mushroom of room rents. In this connection it might be appropriate to ask the University authorities if there is any valid reason why there are rooms vacant, in certain University-owned premises such as 3574 University street, that would be very well suited to accommodate students forced to vacate their rooms due to rising rents.

Yours truly,
Engineer.

A Letter From Poland

The Editor, McGill Daily, Montreal.

Mr. Editor,

A few days ago, there appeared in the "Daily," the article of the Czech student, Karel Poltava. As a complementary addition to the sentiments expressed in Poltava's words, permit me to submit the expressions of another youth, whose name must remain undivulged, since he may at this very moment be in occupied Europe.

Writing from Poland in 1940, he addresses himself to friends in America:

"If only you knew how envious of you are thousands upon thousands in Poland and Lithuania.

Your human and national pride has not been trampled underfoot by Hitler's beast-men, your sleep has not been robbed at night, and your days have not been violated; you walk boldly in the open, and possess the greatest riches man can dream of—your freedom, whose value is most strongly felt when it is lost.

Do you know how much your comrades in the dirty little streets of Warsaw would willingly sacrifice for the privilege of meeting one evening in a large hall, of freely discussing their problems, of singing together their hymns and songs, and of ending in joyous shouts and dancing?

They are shut in behind a thick veil of silence, from which no word penetrates; only an occasional stifled cry of a Gestapo tormented prisoner, or the muffled thud of the battalions of death, singing their song of hate.

But under the grinding silence and clanking chains of Europe, there is a whispered song that is sung, a song of vengeance murmured by illegal conspiratorial meetings, by men with nails biting into palms, and eyes shining with tears, an oath that is made of a fight till the end of Hitlerism, the battle song of the soldiers of Garibaldi; "the graves open up and the corpses awaken." The corpses awaken! In every country of Europe destroyed by the barbarians, the spirit of resistance grows stronger. Its rumor reaches us like the rumble of an earthquake bruited to the ear, foretelling that soon the eruption of hatred and loathing, the compressed subterranean fury of millions will burst forth like a liberating lava and cleanse the earth of the poison and the shame that is Nazism.

We know that Hitler and Fascism cannot crush us."

Such letters, Mr. Editor tell us, "of opening graves and of corpses reborn," of men physically broken, but morally triumphant.

If such then is the faith and hope of men whose minds and bodies have been wracked by humiliation and anguish, what then should be our hope and our faith in the present and in the future?—we who are the generation of adversity, the fighters of today—the builders of tomorrow. Thanking you for your publication; I am,

Yours sincerely,
Z. POMERANTZ,

Annual Photographs

The following graduating students are expected to have their pictures taken at Jacoby Studios, 1541 Crescent Street Wednesday, for publication in the Annual. They will be taken at any time from 9:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. without appointment, except Saturdays. Appointments for sittings at other hours, if necessary, may be made by phoning PL. 1075 for an appointment.

The price, $2.25 (or $2.75 if a finished portrait is desired), is payable at time of sitting.

NOTE—The names of several graduating students have unfortunately been omitted from these published lists. This is regrettable but nonetheless unavoidable. These lists are obtained from the Registrar's Office and are thus the best available.

All graduating students should have their photographs taken. The lists which are published serve as a guide, indicating to the student which day he should go to the Studios. Any student whose name is not on the list, yet is graduating this year, should have his picture taken at the same time as the rest of his class.
